MILES OF TRAILS

With easy access to miles of paved and native trails, you can enjoy an early morning jog, a relaxing stroll, or get more exercise in with a vigorous hike. The sights and sounds of Texas nature are all around, making you feel right at home.

Not all who wander are lost

PRICKLY-PEAR CACTUS

The prickly pear cactus was designated the official plant symbol of Texas in 1995. Found throughout the Texas Hill Country, the fruits of most prickly pear are edible, and have been a source of food to Native Americans for thousands of years. Cacti in general (and the fruits in particular) are still staple foods in Mexico.

WHITE-TAILED DEER

White-tailed deer are found all over the Hill Country. There are an estimated four million white-tailed deer in Texas. They are often solitary animals but can be found in herds ranging in various sizes. White-tails eat mostly weedy plants and shrubs, and can be found in wooded and brushy areas. Deer live in an area around one square kilometer in size.

LIVE OAK

Texas Live Oak trees are large, stately trees that commonly grow to 50 feet tall with a short, stout trunk of 4 feet or more in diameter, dividing into several large, twisting limbs that form a low, dense crown that can spread more than 100 feet. The limbs often touch the ground.

NINE-BANDED ARMADILLO

A distant cousin of the sloth and the anteater, the nine-banded armadillo is the only species in North America. A bony, scaled shell protects the armadillo from predators. Originally native to South America, the nine-banded armadillo now ranges as far north as Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Louisiana.

TEXAS WILDFLOWERS

Bluebonnets, Indian paintbrushes, buttercups, and several other wildflowers spread across the Texas Hill Country each spring, splashing the fields with eye-catching colors.
